This is the first of five phases of a new program geared towards assisting a new postmaster in obtaining an over-all background basis of postal services so that the public in turn will benefit from the best and most efficient postal service possible.

Mrs. Nash stated the two-day course was very efficient, even though she has been in the postal service for 21 years, because an insight was gained into the workings of other comparable offices, knowledge was traded between experienced and inexperienced postmasters, and also given an opportunity to confer with any specific problems affecting the new office by means of a personal interview.

Shortly Mrs. Nash will be visiting for two or three days by an experienced and capable postmaster operating a comparable size office. Soon thereafter

Christmas Gift Mailing Is Lagging So Far This Year, Postmaster Says

Postmaster Rosa Nash announced today that the 1961 "Mail Early for Christmas" campaign is now in high gear, but expressed concern because mailing of Christmas gift packages seems to be lagging and too many people do not realize the need for careful packing and wrapping of their cherished Christmas gifts.

FIRST CLASS POSTAGE IS BEST for mailing Christmas cards, Mrs. Nash added. Cards sent by 4c postage may include a personal handwritten message, and they'll be forwarded or returned if that is necessary. Be sure to include a return address on Christmas cards envelopes.

If Christmas stickers or seals are used, put them on the BACK of the Christmas Cards and packages so that they will not conflict with the address on the front. Make sure that correct postage is firmly affixed to each card.

"More and more of your neighbors are changing to new Union GS-1000 Energy Fuel"

Says Helmuth Bauman,
Union Service operator in Hypoluxo

"When we first started pumping the new GS-1000 Energy Fuel, even my regular customers were skeptical about our claims for it. I guess it sounded too good to be true. They figured laboratory and road tests were one thing, but how GS-1000 might work in their cars would be another.

Today it's a different story. They've had time to test GS-1000 themselves. Their own experience has proved it gives more power, increased gas mileage and better all-around performance. They're telling their friends about GS-1000, so I'm seeing a lot of new customers' faces in my station. Why don't you try new Union GS-1000 Energy Fuel, either Regular or Premium, real soon?"

Troop 601 Enjoys Glades District Camporee Held At Fisheating Creek

Troop 601, sponsored by St. John's Episcopal Church enjoyed camping with other boy scout troops in the Glades District at Fisheating Creek this past weekend.

Up until Saturday evening, each Troop planned their own schedule. Many of the scouts tried to outwit the fish, which were abundant in the area, but with little success. Most of the catches, observed by the reporter, would hardly smell up the pan.

The sport of hog chasing was also high on the list of activities. In fact the poor hogs were run until their tongues hung out and they were panting like dogs. Don't feel sorry for the jowly hog, they were fed royally by a few careless campers. It is a matter of record that they consumed several pounds of bacon, numerous loaves of bread, an assortment of cookies, topped off by a couple dozen of raw eggs. Let it be known here that Troop 601, had no hog trouble.

campfire ceremonies climaxed by "Capture of the Flag." Dr. C. E. Haines, asst. Scoutmaster Troop 601, was master of ceremonies for the campfire, which was a great success. Though the singing and skits put on lacked that professional touch, the fact was overshadowed by the effort put into them by the scouts.

Louie Himes, scoutmaster of the Fisheating Troop very ably assisted by Marvin Davis, scoutmaster of South Bay Troop and Mr. Wilder, headed up the game of "Capture of the Flag."

Sunday services, planned by all the adult leaders present, were very impressive. Urban Felsing, communityman for Troop 621, Belle Glade, led the service. Various Troops read passages from the scriptures, sang special songs and recited memory selections from the Bible. The morning messages were delivered by Elder Armstrong of the newly formed Mormon Troop. His message was concerned with prayer, what each of us had to pray about and most of all how to pray.

This was the largest group in the history of the Glades District, with approximately 120 scouts and scouters present. Seven Troops representing every major city around the lake attended.

Scouts and Scouters attending from Troop 601 were: R. H. Lewis, scoutmaster; C. E. Haines, asst. scoutmaster, and scouts Eddie Haines, Jim Ludlow, Lane Creech, Charles Ruff, Barney Weeks, Robert and Billy Blackwell, Ronnie Cooper, Gregg Jones, Dennis Connell, Henry Toman, Norman Murray and Horace Whidden.—By Troop 601 Reporter.

masterpieces. (I later learned that most of the paintings were done by him.) I asked for a demonstration of his artistic abilities and he painted an exact reproduction of "The Last Supper" in fifteen minutes. "Say," I cried, "that's quite a stunt." He lowered his eyes modestly.

In the den while we were relaxing, we played a few games of scrabble, chess, checkers, parcheesi, monopoly, dominoes and the like. Needless to say, Darry was an expert at each one. He played with reckless abandon seldom seen in these troubled times. As he was talking up his score for the last bridge game on an abacus, I suggested that we dine.

It was then that I discovered another facet of Darry's personality... generosity. He let me buy him dinner. Over steaks, beer, and imported tobacco we discussed good books, music (classical, jazz, swing, dixie, chamber, symphonic, and grand opera), ancient, medieval and modern history, star gazing, literature, philology, economics, government and politics, welding, anthropology, logic, hieroglyphics, germ warfare, nuclear dynamics, languages, the Spanish Inquisition, slander, il-legal, bigotry, and the publishing business.

Then to the delight of our fellow diners, Darry broke into song and performed extremely difficult arias from many famous operas accompanied only by the thigh slapping of robust Mike Morgan who had left his table where he had previously consumed copious quantities of pizza and beer. When the applause had died down we ended our meal with one more pipeful of organically-grown tobacco.

We settled back and chatted quietly. "Darry," I said, "rumor has it that you make quite a bit of money at this business of yours."

"Maybe so, maybe not," he replied. "I'm not sure. You see, I hate money and all that it stands for. I'm in business to help others and that's that. If there happens to be some sort of profit left after a month's time has elapsed, I simply have it loaded into boxes and distributed among the needy. And so it was, we spoke of fools and kings, wise men and underlings. Until at length, Darry, in a magnetically compelling voice full of rich tonal qualities, completely devoid of twang, sayeth, "Hold, I tire of this sport, your idle frivolous chatter is as the buzz of Women swooned, men threw lighted matches and the room was popping furiously with flashbulbs as Connell and his well trained crew captured picture after picture from every conceivable lowly angle. Then he slowly raised his majestic arms thrusting silence as he knew it would. He belted, "Beggars, sons of Jackals, commoners, now hear me and hear me well before the next full moon I demand of you a sacrifice of forty bushels of ripe Mongolian tobacco leaves.

"And now innkeeper more wine for my friends and a tankard of ale for myself," I heard Darry command as I headed for the door. I was anxious to get home, my tobacco supply was exhausted.

Old Methods Best In Treating Water Exposed To Fallout

Old fashioned methods are still the best for purifying drinking water even after exposure to radioactivity, some 18 months of fallout research at the University of Florida has found.

High concentrations of the same chemicals now used in the water treatment plants that supply American cities are 95 to 99 percent effective against nuclear fallout, reports University of Florida research chemist A. P. Black. Such ordinary agents as clay, alum, and others in the right combinations could knock out radioactive agents, he said.

Black also said most of Florida's water will not be reached by fallout because of its deep well source.

IMPORTANT NOTICE FOR PALM BEACH COUNTY VEGETABLE GROWERS:

Now is the time to switch to Phosdrin® Insecticide to maintain complete protection against insects while you are picking and cutting, without creating residue problems.

Powerful Phosdrin Insecticide gives you fast knockdown and kill of aphids, mites, loopers, worms—almost all destructive pests attacking Florida crops.

Then, unlike most other insecticides, Phosdrin disappears, leaves no residue. That's why it can be applied up to 24 hours from harvest on many crops—up to 72 hours on most others.

Read how Phosdrin can save your crop from late-season insect damage or worse, confiscation. Check the chart below for the intervals that apply to your crops.

If not controlled, a late-season insect build-up can quickly downgrade—or make completely unsalable—vegetable crops such as tomatoes, beans, potatoes, peppers, celery, watermelons, eggplants and most leafy vegetables.

If, on the other hand, the infestation is controlled with an insecticide that leaves excess residue on the crop at harvest, the crop is subject to confiscation by government authorities under the terms of the Miller Amendment to Public Law 518.

This is a problem that many growers are solving with Phosdrin Insecticide.

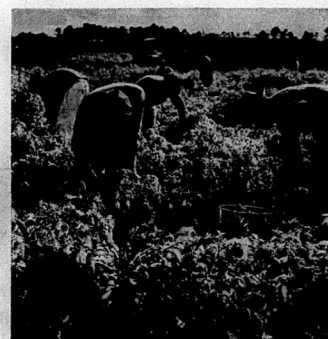

Kills insects fast

Phosdrin is a powerful new phosphate insecticide that kills the toughest insects fast, usually within a few minutes of application. However, unlike most other insecticides, Phosdrin disappears rapidly after it has done its job—leaves no residue.

That's why Phosdrin can be applied up to 24 hours from harvest on many crops—up to 72 hours from harvest on most others. Note: See table below for interval data for your crops.

Hard-to-kill insects

Phosdrin solves other problems too. It controls insects such as cabbage loopers and aphids that are becoming harder to kill with older insecticides. That's why more and more growers are making Phosdrin an integral part of their full-season program.

Good mixer

Phosdrin is compatible with most other insecticides and fungicides. And Phosdrin offers a wide margin of safety to the foliage and fruit of insecticide-sensitive crops such as cucumbers and lettuce.

Low cost

Don't be misled by the cost per pound or gallon of Phosdrin. A little Phosdrin goes a long way. For example, as little as 1/4 to 1/2 of a pound per acre is all it takes to control the toughest insects attacking many vegetables. Dosage rates seldom exceed 1/2 of a pound per acre. In short, on a per acre basis, Phosdrin is very economical.

Where to get Phosdrin

Phosdrin is available from your local insecticide dealer under many well-known brand names. It comes in liquid and dust formulations that are easy to apply with standard application equipment.

Remember, look for the name Phosdrin on the label or in the ingredient statement. Shell Chemical Company, Agricultural Chemicals Division, 55 Marietta Street, N.W., Atlanta 3, Georgia.

The second most important services of the county are the general government operations. Without these services all other county services would be handled less effectively or not at all. The commissioners are the legislative and quasi-executive directors of most of these functions. The clerk of the circuit court is the clerk as his title implies, and he also serves as record keeper, recorder, auditor, treasurer delinquent tax collector, and general "wheel horse" of the courthouse. The tax assessor assesses taxes and the tax collector collects taxes. Each county elects a supervisor of voter registration and many elect a surveyor. Some counties including Palm Beach elect a county attorney as legal advisor or prosecutor or both. There may be a civil service commission for personnel management, a budget commission, and a planning or zoning commission for land use control. Actual law enforcement is provided by an elected sheriff and also by constables in some counties.

The sheriff's department and the constables answer calls for law enforcement and operate highway and school patrols in the county outside the incorporated areas of cities. The sheriff, as executive officer of the county, supervises the county jail and the care of prisoners and is assigned many civil and criminal duties relating to serving processes, summoning jurors, and executing court orders. The major court at the county level is actually a state court; the circuit court in each county. Circuit courts have exclusive original jurisdiction in all cases at law and in equity not provided for in the state constitution, and final appellate jurisdiction in almost all cases arising in the inferior courts.

Each circuit elects the circuit judges for 6-year terms and a state attorney for a 4-year term. Courts of record, criminal courts of record, and other civil and criminal courts have been established in the big counties. County judges are elected for 6-year terms and are the basic unit of the county government. County courts exist in 21 counties and juvenile and domestic relations courts in 8 counties. Minor magistrates, justices of the peace, are elected in several counties, but with the growth of municipal police departments their importance has decreased. The county is the basic unit for the election of national, state and county officials. The provision of polling places, the securing of election officials, and the counting and canvassing of votes are collective duties of the county. The county is the basic unit for the election of national, state and county officials. The provision of polling places, the securing of election officials, and the counting and canvassing of votes are collective duties of the county.

Highway location, construction, and maintenance is a joint function of the state and county governments. The road systems of the counties, save from the state road system total 32,000 miles; 20 percent hard-surfaced, 44 percent inferior surfaced, and 16 percent relatively unimproved. Local roads have become increasingly important in the unincorporated areas of the counties in the urban counties and are a responsibility of the county road departments, under the direction of the county commissioners.

A traditional and important sphere of county services deal with social welfare; care of the handicapped, infirm, and aged; support for public health, hospitals, and like agencies; and relief for the indigent. Many of these programs are interrelated with federal and state activities. In many of them the county serves as the director of welfare administration. County health units operate throughout the state and are integrated with the state board of health and supervised by the state director. Other services in the complicated county governmental system include veterans' assistance, civil defense, airports, docks, pest control, forest fire control recreation and parks, agricultural extension, drainage, conservation, forest control, sewage, garbage and refuse collection and disposal.

A prominent feature of county organization is the election of as many as forty officials in quadrants elections, many of them responsible for a separate sphere of activity.

There is little correlation through executive leadership and county government remains something of a mystery to the citizens. The adoption of county charters, similar to city charters, would enable the county commissioners to institute a single executive plan that has been widely adopted in city governments.

There is a great need to modernize county government in line with the demands of modern society. Florida wrote her first constitution in 1838 and waged the political battle which resulted in her winning secession in 1845.

It was during the first years of the state's infancy years before Civil War that education became a major concern, and efforts were made to establish at least one public school in every county. In 1853 the State Seminary, the earliest public school in the state, began receiving state support, and four years later the University of the State of Florida, which eventually became Florida State University, was established.

In 1861, Florida seceded from the Union and joined the Confederacy. While Florida never became a major theatre of military operations, her troops fought over every battlefield and the state furnished huge quantities of food and military supplies to the Confederate army. Florida beef, pork, corn, and citrus helped to feed the bellies of Confederate soldiers, and Florida cotton helped to clothe them.

The State well earned the title, "Breadbasket of the Confederacy." The South was one of the two major battles fought in Florida, Ocala, outside of the city, and the Battle of Natural Bridge N. of St. Mark. Tallahassee was the only Confederate capital east of the Mississippi which was not captured.

During the Reconstruction Era, Florida, along with the rest of the South, faced the task of reorganizing her society and rebuilding her nearly ruined economy. It was during this time that Florida was being discovered as a major tourist state, and famous Americans like Robert E. Lee and Ulysses S. Grant, visited the State. Others, like Horatio Beecher Stowe, so much enjoyed the climate that they made their home. Mrs. Stowe's articles, appearing in Northern newspapers, extolled the State and her citizens.

In the controversial election of 1876, Florida electoral vote helped to decide who was to be president of the United States and the results of this political battle ended Reconstruction. Florida, as the 19th century ended, was being rediscovered by men like Henry Flagler and Henry B. Plant, whose financial resources seemed unlimited. Their millions rejuvenated Florida's economy, and railroads, steamship, naval stores and phosphate boomed in valuable assets. South Florida was opened up, and the East coast saw large communities, like Miami and Palm Beach, emerge almost overnight.

These men of wealth were not content to control only Florida's economic life; they also wanted to dominate her government. Political resentment grew and an anti-corruption faction finally wrested control from the conservatives and launched a progressive movement in the state.

Florida experienced great growth in the decade after World War I when it seemed as though everyone in the country had been seized with a mad desire to own a bit of Florida land. Prices sky-rocketed, and thousands journeyed to the state expecting to see the vastness of the pine forest wilderness, white-marbled cities which would resemble Venice, the French Riviera and the Arabian Nights.

When the boom bubble burst and the state was swept by two disastrous hurricanes in 1926 and 1928, there were many who believed that Florida was finished and that its growth had been stopped forever. Time, however, disproved this pessimism, and Florida emerged from along struggle against depression with new energy and revived confidence.

Tourists To Join City And Farmer Use Of FCD Dikes And Conservation Areas

Making effective one of the principal functions of the overall idea of the Central and Southern Florida Flood Control program, as advanced by proponents and supported by engineers, Vice Chairman Robert R. (Jack) Horner has asked a committee of citizens joined by administrators of local and governmental agencies, to recommend methods, and provide public participation in effort, towards better utilization by the public of the conservation areas created by the agency.

More than 800,000 acres, roughly 1,345 square miles, is included inside the three areas: No. 1 in Palm Beach County, 141,400 acres is under contract with the Federal Fish and Wildlife Service; No. 2 and No. 3 contained in Broward mostly, with a portion of No. 3, in Dade, covers some 1,124 square miles, are under the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission for administration of laws relating to state owned fish and game areas.

Restrictive and possessive control of the facilities of the District "during construction" have limited access to public recreation areas under intra-state agency supervision.

Permissive authority to "plan" admission of the public "recent months has taken a more 'directive' turn on the part of the Board, Tallahassee and the US Corps of Engineers, supported by a resolution of the Congressional Committee that legislates and appropriates for the project."

Mr. Horner's induction of public thinking through his project, decentralizes bureaucratic conception of "What's good for the public."

The Palm Beach County Committee is composed of Hal Allen Editor-in-Chief of the Post Times, Herbert C. Gee, Engineer and professionally acquainted with the physical units of the Overall Plan, and full-time participant with the original plan, Harold T. Goffe, Realtor, with Jack Goss, Palm Beach growth and progress seemed to have no limitations. The men who have made Florida's history have been men whose insight, vision and courage, have enabled them to triumph over great odds. This same breed of men live in the state today.

There is good reason to believe that Florida's future history will be as well spiced with excitement and romance as was true of her past.

Thomas Tibbett Hayward To Appear In "The Prince Of Peace" Benefit

Thomas Tibbett Hayward, a mKavaler, and many other ma leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera, will make his first appearance in Florida this week in December when he will be presented in "The Prince of Peace" at the Royal Poinciana Playhouse.

Frank J. Hale, producer of the Christmas oratorio to take place at afternoon and evening performances, December 28, 29, 30, said in announcing Hayward as a starring artist here, "with his appearance in Florida, this state will be added to a long list of others where Hayward has scored with his exceptional voice."

Metropolitan critics say that not since the height of the career of Lawrence Tibbett, for whom Thomas Tibbett Hayward is named, has there been a singer as skilled in pleasing American audiences.

Native of the state of Missouri, Hayward has appeared with great success in operas, companies of Philadelphia, Boston, New Orleans, Chicago, Cincinnati, the Havana Pro Arte, Montreal, Puerto Rico Festival, South America, and at the big music center in Central City, Colorado.

Prior to his professional debut with the New York City Opera Company, Mr. Hayward sang in churches, in radio, and after winning the Metropolitan Opera Auditions of the Air, was immediately given a contract.

Supporting roles were quickly followed by the title role in Genoud's "Faust," the Duke in "Rigoletto," Rodolfo in "La Bohème," Alfredo in "La Traviata," Cavaradossi in "Tosca," Alfred in "Fledermaus" (which role he has sung more than 300 times, not only at the Met but with companies from coast to coast; the singer in "Der Rosenkavalier" and many other ma leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera, will make his first appearance in Florida this week in December when he will be presented in "The Prince of Peace" at the Royal Poinciana Playhouse.

As guest star at New York's Lewisohn Stadium, for six years he was Richard Rodgers' personal choice of artist for the ever popular Rodgers and Hammerstein Nights presented there. Demonstrating his ease in the field of lighter music, Mr. Hayward sang the leading tenor role for two seasons in the Jones Beach spectacular "A Night in Venice."

Hayward expressed enthusiasm for his participation in the Prince of Peace benefit from which proceeds will be donated to the Palm Beach County Association for Retarded Children.

John Ingram of Belle Glade has run up a good reputation as a speck fisherman the last few days. Nowvell Shelton and A. J. Ray of Miami had four bass to 7½ pounds. Mark reports good duck hunting with bass off a bit. Specks on the move with many good catches coming in.

All they had was character; all they did was work; all they wanted was self-respect — the sum of these traits became America.

Green Stamps Offered At Pahokee Thriftway

J. Lloyd High, State Manager for S. & H. Co. distributors of stamps for merchandise, announces that special arrangements, Thriftway Grocery, Rardin Avenue, Pahokee commencing today is giving Green Stamps with all purchases.

S. & H. was established in 1896 and is the oldest stamp company in the United States, with 90,000 merchants giving stamps to more than 32 million customers.

The idea originally was that of Mr. Sperry, who induced a friend, Mr. Hutchinson to match his idea with capital to start what has now become a fad with Americans.

Two sons-in-law of the idea man handled the business for their mother-in-law as a side line, until housewives made it a full-time job.

Now, with some 800 redemption stores, 26 of which are in Florida, the owners have counted their take in millions even though it comes in on a fraction of a cent basis.

George Crews and Roy Miner own the store which is affiliated with the Independent Grocers organization of southeast Florida.

What Makes BGHS Bounce

MY PAL DARRY

By Richard Chappell

My dynamic body was embolized with virility. My hair had awe inspiring curls. The way I smoked my pipe was simply tingling to behold. My vocabulary was unlimited and I had the voice of Charon Heston. I short, I was a finished product, a product manufactured by "Oh Masterful One," Darry Wood. And now I wanted to meet him, give him thanks. My vocabulary was in his mission and at the same time see what manner of man it was that had led me alone, no, virtually driven me to the very pinnacle of popularity.

I had made reservations to spend a few days with him and in preparation for my journey to Mt. Olympus I packed all the things Darry had recommended to me on my climb to massive success. I dutifully folded into place form fitting turtleneck sweaters of every hue and color: black, ebony, charcoal, navy blue, midnight purple, etc.

and royal coat compromised my cherished lot. There into a special case went my sunglasses, imported tobacco of many flavors which I planned to give Darry, and six pairs of white tennis shoes. Reluctantly I decided to leave my complete set of Jockey glasses behind, for the house of mirrors still owned more of them than I did.

My heaviest trunk, containing all my art supplies, was called for by two husky bronze Adonis-like porters with life-guard shoulders and ballerina waists (obviously Wood pupils). However before they could trundle it off to the station I watched them light their twenty bushel capacity pipes with a distinct air of superiority. Then they recited Einstein's theory of relativity. Thus with soul affiance I departed.

Upon my arrival at the modest offices of Wood Enterprises I stated the nature of my business to a receptionist. After I was carefully searched and my bags torn asunder, the drawbridge was lowered and I crossed the moat with a sure foot and

B. G. Band Begins Concert Season

By Craig Boots

The Belle Glade High School Band concluded its marching season with a concert highlighted by head majorette Pat Anderson's first baton solo. Wonder how many of the Blue Devils fans realized that the band left the field, the Belle Glade band marched on to the strains of "When the Saints Go Marching In?"

There are surely many others who join the band in a cheer for little Mike Stevens, who was an enthusiastic participant even though he got, even in uniform, both the band and glee club are both practicing Christmas music to be part of a special program for the student body on December 19.

Concert season is now at hand with State Music Clinic in Miami in January.

Everyone agrees that the band is doing a fine job this year and to help Mr. Stevens with the duties of the band he selected one of the group of band officers. They are:

Capt. — Frankie Barbee, low brass section leader.

Lt. — Barbara Wolf, clarinet section leader.

Lt. — Peggy Farmer, high brass section leader.

Sgt. — Josephine Crouch, general administration.

Attendance officer — Cherry Bridges.

NOT POKER — IT'S PITIFUL!

An editorial in The Florida Press referring to attendance at a State Department briefing conference of "grass roots" newsmen, says, "I came away with the decided impression that our government desperately needs the understanding help and advice of every citizen."

We agree that they do NEED that; does the State Department agree?

The editorial further says: "Every move of the State Department cannot be made public."

May we implore that the public be NOT advised of every move of the State Department — we have heard of too many already.

SO TRUE — America unquestionably has the highest standard of living in the world. Hardly any of us can afford it. — Anonymous

UNCLE DAN

Dear Mister Editor:

I see by the papers where a official of the Treasury Department claims it would be good for the country if we cut in half the inheritance tax on all estates worth $10 million or more. He allows as how it would be a "incentive to free enterprise."

I'm strong in favor of it, Mister Editor. I remember back in 1926 when Cal Coolidge came up with an idea called the "flexible tariff" for helping the little feller. My memory gets a little hazy after 35 years but seems like I recall we got a little relief on such items as goose feathers, paint brushes, axe handles and sheep dip. If I recollect right, this is the last time our little fellers had any reduction.

Starting at $10 million is a little high up on the hog, but it could be the beginning of a trend. By the end of this century the Congress might gift down to the one-gallus boys, get it's a farmer or rancher could put his cemetery lot and front yard in the Soil Bank and get his fertilizer at cost through the United Nations.

When I bring these glad tidings to the fellers at the country store Saturday night most of 'em took a dim view of the situation. Ed Doolittle, fer instance claimed everbody in Washington did a heap of popping off when the Congress was out of town.

Yours truly,
Uncle Dan

Holders Of Savings Bonds Get Ten-Year Extension

Some half-millions Americans who own Series H Savings Bonds bought between June 1952 and January 1957 are in for a nice surprise — one that will bring extra money into their pockets.

Mr. Edwin M. Lively, Belle Glade Savings Bonds Chairman, calls attention to a recent change in Treasury regulations permitting owners of these maturity H Bonds to continue holding them for an additional 10 years at a higher rate of interest — a straight 3 and three-fourth per cent annually.

Mr. Lively pointed out that these H Bonds were originally issued to pay an average of 3 per cent annually for the nine-year, eight-month life of the bond. "In 1959, this rate was increased so as to bring the final yields to maturity up to a range of 3.12 per cent to 3.36 per cent. Under new regulations, these bonds, the first of which matured in February 1959, will return in semi-annual interest checks a straight 3 and three-fourth percent interest during the extension period.

Holders of these Series H Savings Bonds will be notified by the Treasury of the extension privilege granted them when they receive their next to last interest check. Owners will not have to do anything about extending their H Bonds. This is Bond is not redeemed, the own-automatic. As long as the H er will continue to draw semi-annual interest checks at the new, higher rate of 3 and three-fourth percent interest for a full ten years."

The Series H Bond when introduced in June 1952, was custom-made to satisfy the needs of Americans who wanted a current-income bond which would be free from market fluctuations and would possess the same safety features and guaranteed interest rate as the popular Series E Bond. There are now close to one and one-half million H Bond accounts with an investment of some six billion dollars. Nearly 160,000 new accounts are opened yearly.

Secretary of the Treasury

20th ANNIVERSARY 1941-1961

Douglas Dillon, recently stated that "this new extension option for Series H Bonds is a well-deserved reward for the citizens who have held these securities for their full term. It is a reminder, too, that the opportunity of owning these 'Shares in America' is a privilege to be cherished. The purchase of U. S. Savings Bonds by every family is important to the economic strength of our nation, and is thus a contribution to the cause of peace and freedom around the world."

Arnold Blanch Will Teach Painting At Norton Art School During Winter

An important exhibition in the series of one-man shows held at the Norton Gallery of Art each season will be a new set of paintings, drawings, and sketches by Arnold Blanch. The show will open on Sunday, December 10th with a preview reception at 4:00 p. m. for members of the Palm Beach Art Institute. Mr. Blanch and his wife, who paints professionally as Doris Lee, will be present at the Reception to meet the members and their guests.

Blanch paints primarily in a modern, abstract idiom, though it is generally based on the reality of a landscape or some other visual experience. He is an excellent colorist, striving always to make an interesting, intricate pattern of shapes over the canvas. His combination of stencils and monoprints with brush work is a most unusual personal technique. Most of his recent work involves the use of the new polymer mediums.

His paintings hang in the permanent collections of many important museums, including the Whitney Museum of Art, the Cleveland Museum of Art, the Detroit Institute of Arts and the Library of Congress. Blanch has won many awards and prizes, among them a Guggenheim fellowship, third prize at an international exhibition at the Carnegie Institute, and awards for book illustrations.

Singing Tower Recital 34th Season Opened 12-1

The thirty-fourth season of carillon recitals at the Singing Tower, built by Edward Bok, started December 1st.

Anton Brees, carillonneur, is again at the clavier of the great cast bells that hang in the tower of the Singing Tower, as he has each season since 1928.

Carillon recitals, featuring favorite hymns and folk music, are scheduled every day except Monday at 3 p. m. through April 30. In addition, a musical selection is presented each hour following the sounding of the Westminster melody and hour strike.

The Singing Tower, in the Mountain Lake Sanctuary, is owned and maintained by the non-profit foundation created by Mr. Bok. No admission charge is made, though a nominal parking fee is collected.

The Singing Tower is widely considered to be Florida's best-known landmark, is 295 feet high and is located atop Iron Mountain, altitude 295 feet, the highest point of land on the Florida peninsula.

The Sanctuary is open every day of the year from 8:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m.

How Much Food Did You Eat Last Year?

How much food did you eat last year? Do you eat less now than your parents ate 50 years ago?

If you ate an average amount, you consumed 1,488 pounds of food during 1960. The U. S. Department of Agriculture estimates that the average amount of food consumed last year.

But that's about 100 pounds less than the average person consumed 50 years ago. Today's better and less bulky diets are partly responsible for the decline. But a good part of the reduction is due to the fact that we are not as active now as we were then. We simply don't need as much energy. A USDA official says if this sedentary trend continues, energy requirements will be so reduced that selection of foods in our diets will be severely limited in future.

What kinds of food did you consume in largest quantities? Again, if you are average, you ate more dairy products than anything else. Average consumption of dairy products except butter last year is estimated at 414 pounds per person. Butter is counted in with fats and oils. But cheese, milk and all other dairy products are included. Average consumption of all the dairy products equaled about 250 quarts of milk.

The fruit and vegetable group, right down Florida's alley, was a close runner-up with 409 pounds per person. Potatoes are not included in with fruits and vegetables, and Mr. Average Person ate 108 pounds of potatoes.

And with it all, you might be thankful that you are a part of the best fed nation in the world today, thanks to agricultural research and farming efficiency.

FLORIDA Facts...

FLORIDA USES... SOME TWO BILLION GALLONS OF WATER A DAY, AND TWENTY TIMES THIS MUCH MORE IS LOST AS IT DRAINS INTO THE SEA. THE NEED FOR CONSERVATION BECOMES INCREASINGLY URGENT AS THE STATE GROWS.

Among Industrial Leaders... IN CONSERVATION ARE PHOSPHATE COMPANIES, WHOSE MODERN MINING AND PROCESSING METHODS PERMIT USE OF WATER OVER AND OVER AGAIN. THIS GREATLY REDUCES DEMANDS ON UNDERGROUND SUPPLIES.

County Commission Important Segment

Why does Florida attract millions of tourists each year? Why does Florida produce more citrus fruit and commercial winter vegetables than any other place of similar size in the world? A look at the State's geography will provide some of the answers to such questions as these.

Location Is Important Florida's location and shape are basic assets. As the most southern of all the mainland states, Fla. extends into the net subtropics with a mild winter climate. The State is mainly a peninsula with a shoreline of about 1,300 miles. This peninsular location helps to temper the blasts of cold air from the north in the winter and the hot humid tropical air in summer. Warm ocean currents further temper the climate.

The longitudinal location of Florida is also an interesting one. It is not generally realized that Palm Beach, Florida's easternmost city, is almost due south of Pittsburgh, Pensacola, at the extreme western tip of the state, is about due south of Chicago.

This favorable location of Florida with respect to the large concentration of population in northeastern and midwestern United States is a significant geographic fact. Florida is a part of a highly prosperous and industrialized nation. Three-fifths of this nation's population lives to the north and east of Florida. Here are ready markets for citrus vegetables, beef, tobacco, and other products of Florida's farms.

Florida at hand too are more than 100 million potential tourists. Florida Emerges from the Sea. The Peninsula States, as we know it today, is part of a much larger geological unit known as the Floridian Plateau. This partially submerged platform which is attached to the continent of North America, separates the deep water of the Atlantic Ocean from the depths of the Gulf of Mexico.

During the millions of years of its existence it has been alternately dry or covered by shallow seas. Except for the slightly domed north central portion in the vicinity of Ocala, the whole platform is nearly level. This gently sloping area is called the land and you will see license. Far Central Highlands, and forms the largest of the so-called highland areas in the State.

Lowlands flank the Central Highlands. These lowlands extend outward from an elevation of approximately 100 feet to the white and along the coast provides the State with some of the finest beaches in the world. In the southern part of the peninsula is found one of the world's most unusual regions, the Everglades, a large area of flatland covered originally by saw grass interspersed with clumps of trees and underlain by thick limestone covered with layer of peat. South of the main land, a chain of islands known as the Florida Keys extends in a southwesterly direction for more than 100 miles.

The Key line in the Central Highlands results from the removal of limestone by under-

Use Your Feet Not Mom's Car Says Kennedy

The movement to get students out of mom's car and on to their own two feet or two wheels for transportation to and from school gained sharp momentum this summer when President John F. Kennedy requested that school authorities include at least 15 minutes of vigorous activity in their daily programs.

President Kennedy asked that schools include a basic physical development program, including exercise and achievement, in their curriculum and to establish tests which would measure physical ability and evaluate the progress of those participating in such a program.

One basic reason for the national concern over the health of young people is a decided lack of exercise on the part of students. Children today climb happily into their family car, school bus or public transportation and ride to and from school, experts have noted, and rarely depend upon their own exertions to reach school.

Yet, it has been stated, by riding to school or walking to and from school students would enjoy the minimum exercise necessary to maximum physical development, health and fitness and relieve parents of the arduous chore of acting as a chauffeur at virtually every hour of the day.

Currently some five million students, ranging from grammar school to college, are pedaling to school on two-wheels, the greatest number ever to depend upon the bike for school transportation. Cycling, experts agree, is one of the best exercises for growing bodies because it may be as pleasant as strenuous as the rider desires. And bikes provide low cost, pleasant transportation with little or no parking problem.

But because of the intensive use made of bikes during the summer months in both recreation and business.

FUN AT FIRST SIGHT

Create your own holiday decorations for a really festive table. It's easy and inexpensive. Use a simple umbrella, covered with paper napkins, as the centerpiece. Then make beds and bridesmaid dolls from pipe cleaners, napkins, ribbons and sprigs of flowers. Paper fans for each guest add a final touch of gaiety.

If you're to be hostess for a kin and thread both napkins on a bridal shower this season you'll want to go all out on your table decorations to give your party off to a good start.

Happily, a festive bridal shower table need not be expensive. In fact, with a little imagination, you can easily do the decorations yourself, using readily available materials.

For example, you can make a clever umbrella centerpiece out of a small toy umbrella and paper napkins. Place the inside of the open umbrella first. Then cut large circles out of napkins, pinch them together in the center and paste them to the top of the umbrella. Start at the edge and work toward the center. Decorate with flowers with a ribbon bow, then wrap the handle with napkins and place the finished umbrella in a styrofoam base, decorated with more napkins, circles, flowers and ribbon.

Bride and bridesmaid dolls are easily made, too. You'll need three colored pipe cleaners for each doll. Bend and twist the cleaners into figure forms; no head, is necessary. Just twist two cleaners together half way down, leaving the bottom half for legs and feet. Take the third cleaner and twist it around the body at the middle to form arms.

Open two Kleenex napkins (regular or new Casual size) to full size and trim off the corners to make circles. Cut a small hole in the center of each nap-

Growing Gladiolus

Growing gladiolus in the home garden is easy.

Corms — commonly called bulbs — planted now will produce a splash of color in 60 to 90 days. These tall stem beauties have eye appeal. They attract attention as a garden flower, a bouquet in the home or an arrangement for the church.

For a blend of colors, plant several varieties of gladiolus. Start with June Bells or White Friendship for a snow white display. Mingle in a few colors of Hopman's Glory or Spotlight Variety for a splash of yellow. Add Valeria or San Souci for red hues and plant Elizabeth the Queen for a dash of lavender.

For feminine pink, select a few corms of Friendship, Spick and Span or Phantom Beauty. Gladiolus thrive best in a well-drained soil in a sunny location.

To prepare a bed for planting, cultivate thoroughly and remove all weeds and trash. Mark off the rows in the planting bed — perhaps to form a design that will add additional beauty at blossoming time.

In well-drained or very sandy soil, prepare a two or three inch trench for planting. On clay or organic soils place the corms at ground level and mound up the earth at least four inches over the "bulbs."

Set the corms firmly into the soil, four to six inches apart in rows that are two to three feet apart.

When planting is finished, rake in a commercial fertilizer such as 4-8-8 (NPK) on the sides of the beds, but not directly over the corms.

Use about 2½ pounds of plant food per 100 feet of row. Water the area to dissolve the fertilizer.

By selecting varieties or planting on alternate weeks, it is possible to extend flowering over a considerable period.

While waiting for the flowers to show, keep the gladiolus plants well watered. Soil with a small hole is the best way to defeat the pest plants. Also, shallow cultivation causes less damage to the gladiolus roots.

University of Florida Experiment Station horticulturists say that gladiolus on medium soil need another application of fertilizer about five weeks after planting. On very sandy soils the gladiolus grow better if offered at least three applications of plant food at two-week intervals after planting.

Spread the fertilizer on both sides of the row about six inches from the plants and work into the soil surface without harming the root system. Water well after fertilizing to carry the fertilizer into the root zone.

To prevent diseases, purchase only clean, bright corms. Usually, small corms, one inch in diameter, are healthier than larger corms. Dull, dark husks indicate old corms which might

Junior's Will Present Christmas Program

The Christmas Story will be presented Sunday Dec. 10, at 3:30 p.m. by Juniors, ages 9 and 10, in their department in the First Baptist Church.

All parents are invited to those program and the open house following.

Mr. and Mrs. V. A. Boots and her mother, Selden L. Stewart, for reminding all of us to remember and to use the American Creed by William Tyler Page. Here are the words we may well recall.

"I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, for the people, by the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy without a monarch; a sovereign nation of many sovereign states; a perfect union, and inseparable and established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice, and humanity for which the first American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes. I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it, to support its Constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its flag; and to defend it against all enemies, foreign and domestic."

city diseases.

If, in a lot of 100 corms, there are more than two or three shriveled by rot, it's best to make your bulb purchase elsewhere.

If disease spots show up on leaves of the plants, spray once a week with a fungicide of dieldrin to control the varnishes. In making the applications follow the manufacturers' directions carefully.

When blossoms begin to show don't be too hasty cutting them for home use. Allow at least two lower florets to open fully before cutting the spikes.

Gladiolus will last about a week in the home. For this long lasting beauty, keep the vases clean and free of bacterial slime by changing the water at least twice a day.

Also, change the water in the vase every third day and cut off an inch or more of the base of the stems at that time.

For additional information, ask your county agent for Circular 188, Gladiolus for the Home Gardener.

Now The Hens Demand "Comfort" For Laying

Gainesville, Fla.—Comfort is the key to keeping hens laying through a long, not sunny, winter.

Leslie W. Kalch, assistant in poultry husbandry with the Florida Agricultural Extension Service, says.

Kalch says egg production falls off noticeably as pen temperatures reach 85 degrees and death losses begin when temperatures reach 95 degrees in unventilated houses. Losses start at 90 degrees in unventilated houses.

When temperatures are more than 85 degrees, provide sufficient drinking space so all birds may drink at one time if they desire. Cold water helps birds throw off body heat. Protect water pipes from direct exposure to the sun, as the birds will not drink hot water.
